The EU is rewriting the rules of public procurement.

What should businesses know?

What happened?

The Commission proposes replacing three procurement directives with one directly applicable Regulation.

The big shift

Public procurement is becoming a tool for competitiveness, resilience and economic security.

Origin & supply chains

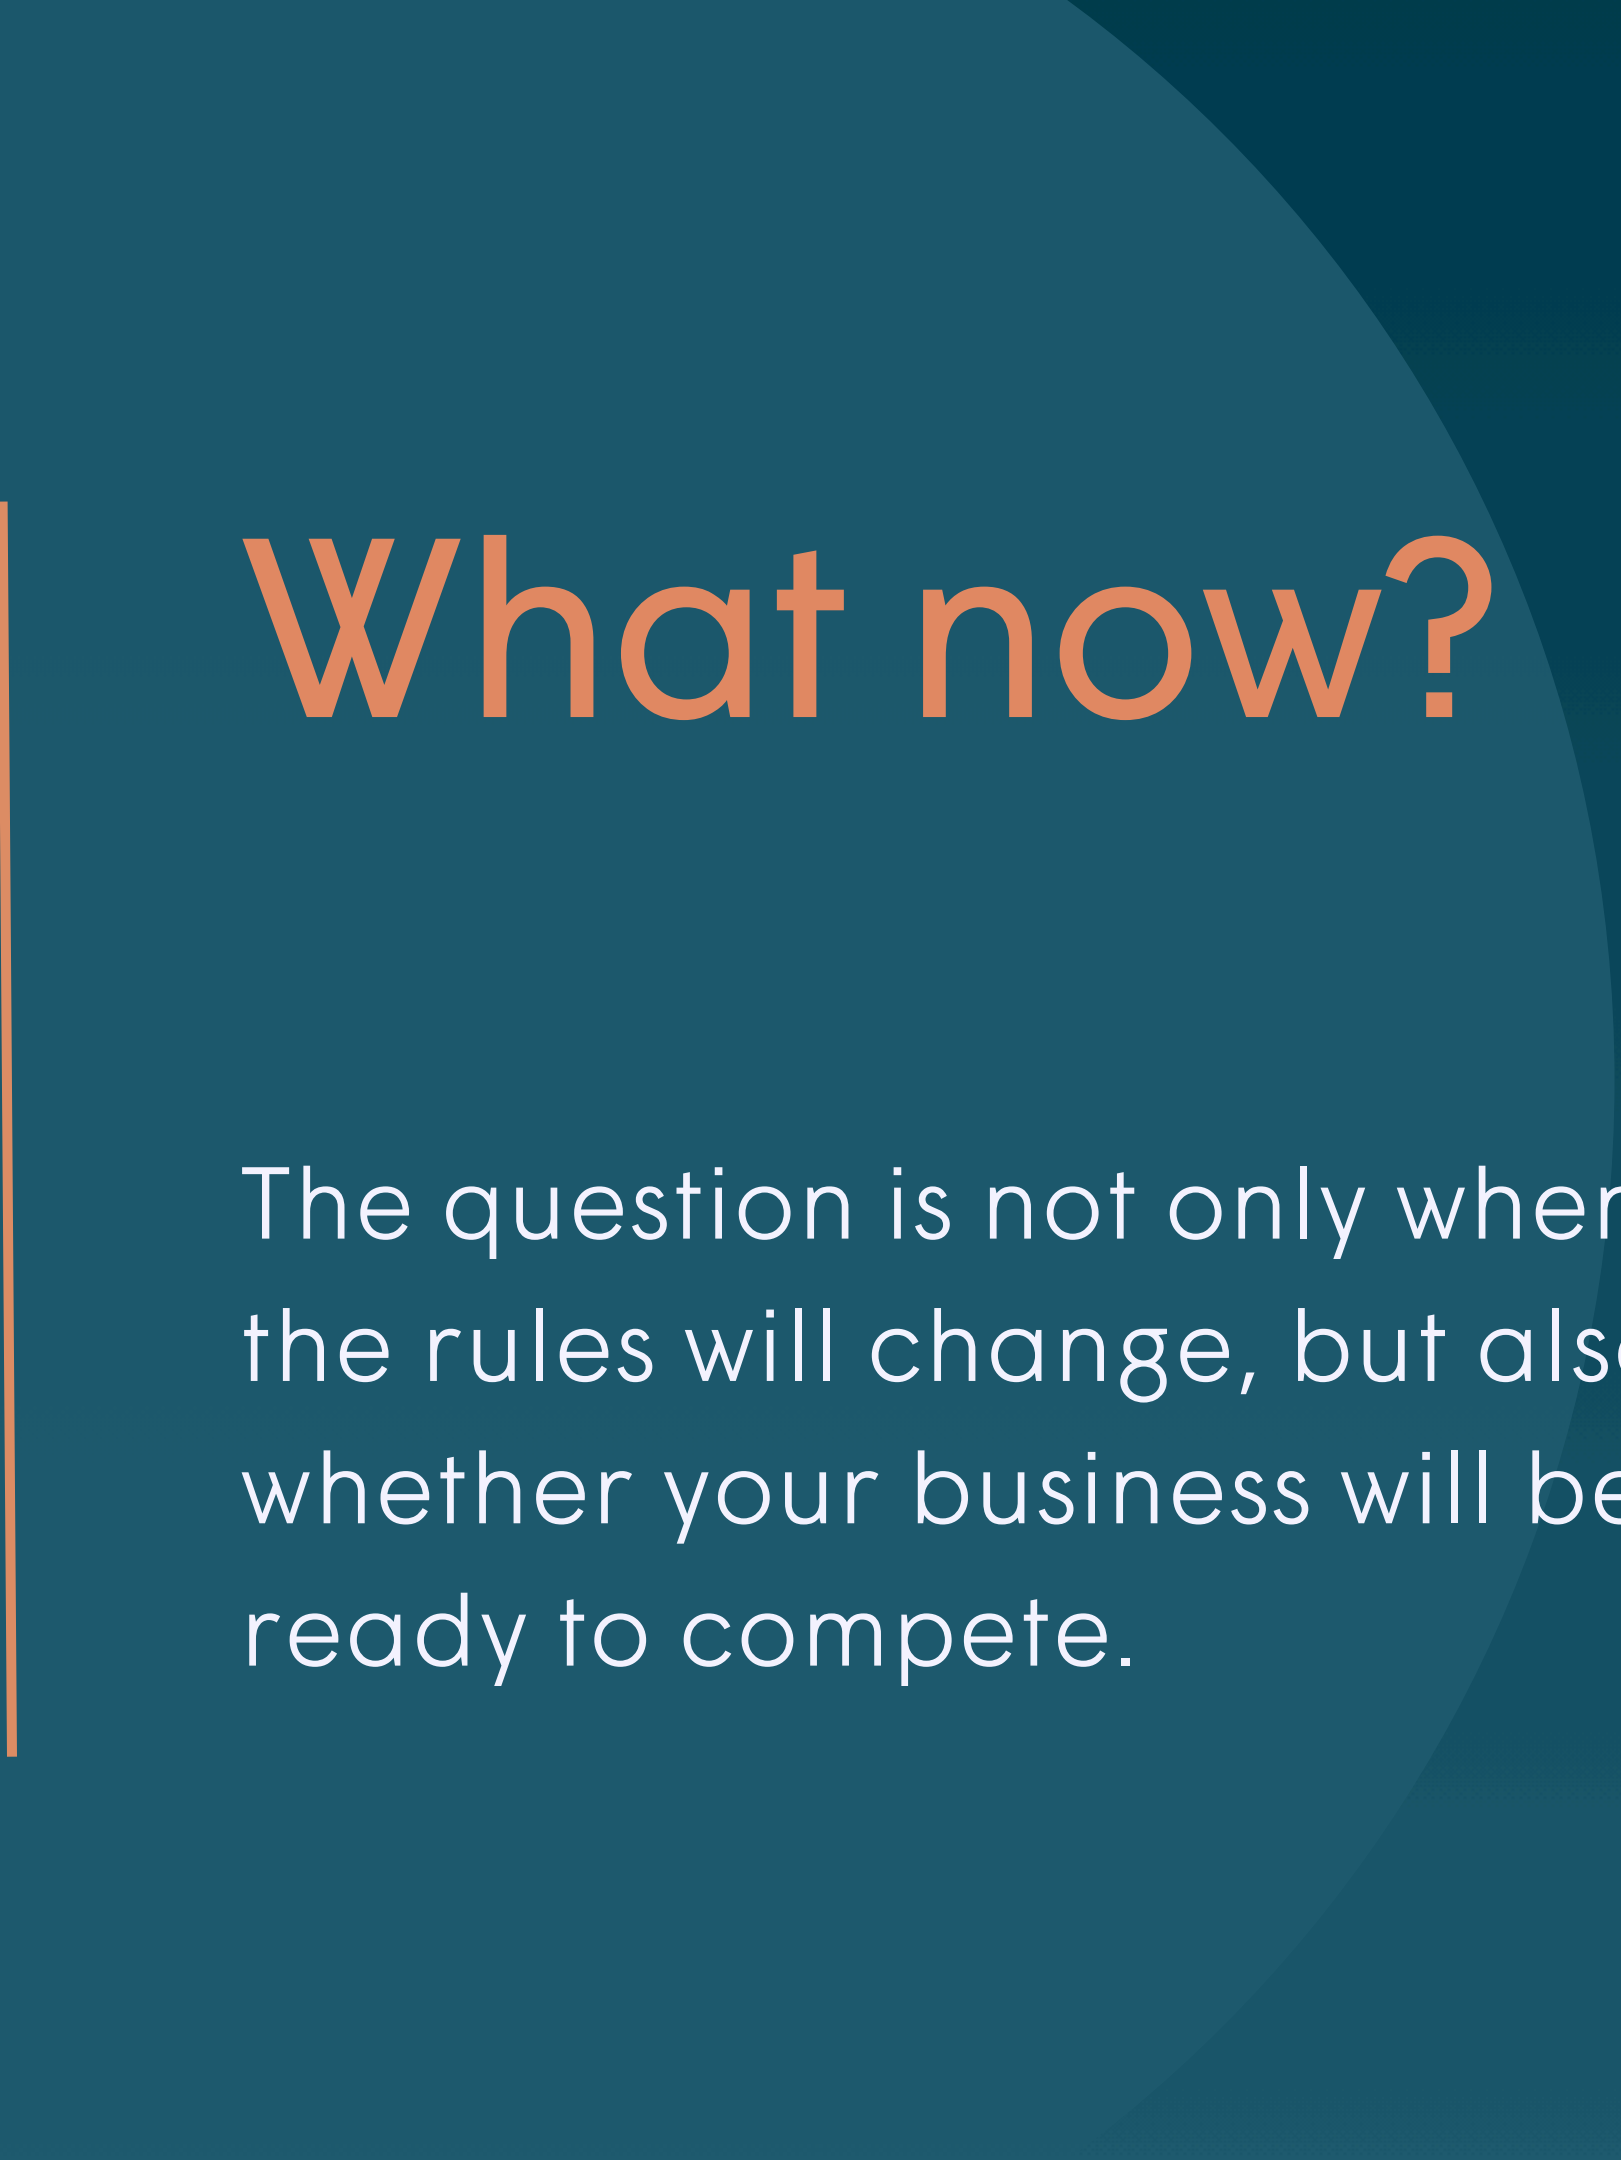

Supply chains may become a competitive advantage – or a barrier to public contracts.

Price may not be enough

Quality, innovation, sustainability, security and resilience may carry more weight in winning public contracts.

What now?

The question is not only when the rules will change, but also whether your business will be ready to compete.
